

SHOPPERS and holidaymakers will be treated to an egg-stravaganza in Rhyl this Easter.

Rhyl Town Council has joined forces with the White Rose Shopping Centre to put on activities in the town over the Easter weekend.

The town council is putting on two stilt walking bunnies on Easter Monday when free chocolate lollipops will be handed out to shoppers and visitors. The goodies have been donated by the White Rose which is also hosting its own crafty activities over the bank holiday weekend.

Rhyl mayor Cllr Alan James said: "Our Easter stilt walkers will be an unusual and welcome presence to the high street and surrounding areas on Bank Holiday Monday, greeting shoppers and visitors alike. We're grateful to the White Rose for providing treats for us to give out on the day and pleased to be working together to support the town and its businesses."

Alongside the stilt walkers, the White Rose has lined up a weekend of fun with card making, magic shows, puppet workshop and a treasure hunt all running over the weekend.

The White Rose Easter card workshops will be held on Good Friday (March 30) from 10am-3pm. The treasure hunt will run on Good Friday, Easter Saturday (March 31) and Monday (April 2) and the puppet workshops will be held on Bank Holiday Monday (April 2), 10am-3pm. The stilt walkers will be out on Monday April 2 between 11am-3pm.

White Rose Centre Manager Sue Nash said: “Between us and the town council there’s plenty to enjoy over Easter. Working together in this way to offer new and different experiences enables us to support Rhyl businesses.”
